ENGLISH PAPER MAIN TEST 1 FOR 2023 ENTRY – ANSWERS (I Capture The Castle)

Candidates must NOT tick more boxes than they are instructed to. Any who do will lose all the marks for that question.

Question	Answer	Marks
1.	Her loving paws are apt to scrape one painfully/she hurts people with her paws if she gets inside the bath. It is fine to accept a direct quotation. Do not accept a brief comment: 'her paws'. Need at least 'her paws scrape.' Do not accept 'she was no asset' on its own: there needs to be a reason which explains why she isn't an asset. If they have added that the paws may scratch a particular body part, e.g. knee, please accept. Accept an answer which mentions the dog hurting the narrator.	1 mark
2.	a) Yes b) ● Cassandra and Heloise were amicable/feeling happy and friendly as Cassandra was in the bath. ● 'Wonderfully cosy' ● There were no draughts, so Cassandra must have felt warm and comfortable. ● The fire had a 'rosy glow' which sounds very pretty/nice. ● The sheets were turned to a 'fascinating colour' which must have been nice to look at. Also accept 'settled down'. Accept any logical reason, e.g. "the draught-proof screen' gives me the impression that it is a tight private space, which is nice." Make sure the reasons given come from the boxed text which forms part of the question, rather than anywhere else in the passage. We can accept correct reasons in part b even if part a is wrong. One mark per clear answer. Direct quotations are fine as are generalised comments.	1 mark 3 marks
3.	Bask/wash/read If a student decides to write the whole quotation out 'I bask first, wash second and then read as long as the hot water holds out' and ignore the numbers 1,2 and 3, they can still be awarded full marks. Students must put correct verbs in correct order to get all three marks. For example, if they write 'get in bath/wash/read' they get two marks (because one of the verbs is wrong – but two are correct and in the correct order). Or if they write 'bask/read/wash' they get one mark (all verbs are correct but only 'bask' is in the correct order). A synonym for bask is fine, e.g. relaxing. E.g., if students have paraphrased basking, washing and reading, that's fine, as long as they clearly understand what is meant. Don't accept that she was 'not eating the whole apple'.	3 marks
4.	Accept: to relax/to lay around lazily/luxuriously in warmth. Must have an aspect of enjoying warmth to relax and feel lazy. Don't accept 'bathe'. We will allow 'relax' without warmth being mentioned (contrary to mark scheme). Don't allow ideas where candidates are hedging, e.g. 'to relax or do fun things'.	1 mark
5.	a) An apple. b) Yes. c) Her gratitude was so intense – Heloise was so grateful she tried to climb into the bath with Cassandra – Cassandra had to stop Heloise from climbing into the bath to give her a thank you cuddle – Heloise was so happy and excited she tried to eat the soap. DO NOT accept a quotation that comes before Cassandra shared the apple: eg, 'Heloise was lashing her tail so hopefully'. Candidates may wrongly associate the wagging tail with the dog being pleased, but this action happens BEFORE the apple is given. So, wagging tail (or similar) is wrong. Allow a mark for: "Heloise lashed her tail and 'her gratitude was so intense'" even though half of the answer is wrong. We must reward what is there (unless there is obvious blind copying of whole sections of the text without any sense of understanding).	3 marks

6.	a) No. b) Answers can include: <table><thead><tr><th>QUOTATIONS</th><th>EXPLANATION</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>‘I still can’t imagine what made me call out “Come in.”’</td><td>Cassandra is still in shock when she is retelling the story that she made such a bad decision as to invite the people in.</td></tr><tr><td>‘Had face covered in soap’</td><td>Was not in a position to talk to people.</td></tr><tr><td>‘Felt helpless’</td><td>Was not feeling able to talk to strangers.</td></tr><tr><td>‘Soap got in my eyes... groping blindly’</td><td>Could not see and so could not tell who was at the door/protect herself.</td></tr><tr><td>‘Heloise started barking’</td><td>The quiet of the bath time was ruined; the fact that Heloise is barking could suggest there are strangers.</td></tr><tr><td>‘[Heloise nearly knocked] over the clothes horse and everything else that held up my screen of sheets.’</td><td>It would have been very embarrassing if the screen of sheets was knocked over as then anyone who came into the kitchen could have seen Cassandra in the bath.</td></tr><tr><td>‘I hadn’t even a towel to wrap around me... I must have left it somewhere in the kitchen.’</td><td>Cassandra cannot even climb out of the bath and wrap herself in a bath towel if there are strangers at the door as she has forgotten to bring her towel. This is extra embarrassing.</td></tr></tbody></table> Allow ‘to wrap around me... kitchen’ to be included. Allow any evidence which includes reference to the towel. Quotations must be accurate word for word, but spelling and punctuation mistakes are allowed. Don’t allow paraphrasing, e.g.: ‘I can’t imagine what made me call out: “Come in.”.’ She doesn’t know why she called out. But do allow: – anything which explains how there is a link between the quotation and the idea that it was foolish to invite people in while she was having a bath. – anything which states how a consequence of calling out leads to difficulties, e.g. the dog being difficult to calm down. – anything which links a quotation to the idea that the narrator is embarrassed, and/or helpless/vulnerable. One mark for each well selected quotation (maximum of three marks). One mark for each clear explanation (maximum of three marks).	QUOTATIONS	EXPLANATION	‘I still can’t imagine what made me call out “Come in.”’	Cassandra is still in shock when she is retelling the story that she made such a bad decision as to invite the people in.	‘Had face covered in soap’	Was not in a position to talk to people.	‘Felt helpless’	Was not feeling able to talk to strangers.	‘Soap got in my eyes... groping blindly’	Could not see and so could not tell who was at the door/protect herself.	‘Heloise started barking’	The quiet of the bath time was ruined; the fact that Heloise is barking could suggest there are strangers.	‘[Heloise nearly knocked] over the clothes horse and everything else that held up my screen of sheets.’	It would have been very embarrassing if the screen of sheets was knocked over as then anyone who came into the kitchen could have seen Cassandra in the bath.	‘I hadn’t even a towel to wrap around me... QUOTATIONS	EXPLANATION
‘I still can’t imagine what made me call out “Come in.”’	Cassandra is still in shock when she is retelling the story that she made such a bad decision as to invite the people in.
‘Had face covered in soap’	Was not in a position to talk to people.
‘Felt helpless’	Was not feeling able to talk to strangers.
‘Soap got in my eyes... groping blindly’	Could not see and so could not tell who was at the door/protect herself.
‘Heloise started barking’	The quiet of the bath time was ruined; the fact that Heloise is barking could suggest there are strangers.
‘[Heloise nearly knocked] over the clothes horse and everything else that held up my screen of sheets.’	It would have been very embarrassing if the screen of sheets was knocked over as then anyone who came into the kitchen could have seen Cassandra in the bath.
‘I hadn’t even a towel to wrap around me... I must have left it somewhere in the kitchen.’	Cassandra cannot even climb out of the bath and wrap herself in a bath towel if there are strangers at the door as she has forgotten to bring her towel. This is extra embarrassing.
7.	a) No. b) Heloise is only ‘barking her hardest’ so all her energy is going into barking not attacking. The two men try to ‘soothe’ Heloise: they are not frightened of being hurt by her. Cassandra is clear that Heloise ‘never tries to bite anyone.’ Heloise quietens down after a minute or so. Accept anything reasonable from the entire passage which suggests that the dog is not dangerous. It is possible for candidates to get points for part b even if part a is left blank, wrong, or both options are ticked. Part b can be rewarded marks if it’s clear that the candidate explains that the dog isn’t dangerous. One mark for each clear explanation (maximum of two marks).	1 mark 2 marks
8.	First man: American; Nice voice; sounds like a ‘goodie’ in American films; wants people to know that he has entered their house as he calls out ‘Anyone home?’. Second man: Mysterious; hard to place his accent; is interested in history/architecture; wants to be quiet and explore the house rather than letting the owners know they are there/rude because he wants to explore a strangers house. It does NOT matter which order the students write about the men. However, they must not get the two characters confused. One mark for each clear comment on each man. Direct quotations/explained inferences are both fine. Ensure that the candidates have clearly differentiated the two men. The information they write about the men should be associated with their characteristics and not the fact that they were in a car/own a car etc. Note: Only give one point for the following responses, even if they are written in the two spaces for man one or man two: ‘an unusual voice’ and ‘quiet and interesting’ – this information in the text (line 31) is one piece of information and should be awarded one mark. Similarly, he ‘didn’t sound English’ and ‘he didn’t sound American’ is the same piece of information in the context of the passage, so should be awarded one mark.	4 marks

9.	The man who calls ‘Anyone home’. – The first man who talks. – He wants people to know that he has entered their house. – Smith has Cassandra reflect that his voice sounds like ‘the nice people in American films’ which suggests he is a nice person. The students must clearly indicate which character they are writing about for the first mark. Do not accept a direct quotation without an explanation for the second mark. Double check that the reason given really means that the man is trustworthy rather than just restating what the man does: there should be an explanation included, even if brief. So not, ‘he calls out’ unless accompanied by something like ‘because he wants people to know he’s there, or doesn’t want to surprise or frighten anyone’. Allow mention of the second man as a contrast for evidence of the man being trustworthy, as the writer intended for this contrast as part of her characterisation.	2 marks
10.	a) Cassandra was feeling anxious/sad/worried/concerned. Students must state that the emotion is a negative one to get the mark. b) Cassandra knows that if the man comes to look at the fireplace wall, then he will see her in the bath. Students must make the link to Cassandra being anxious about being found in the bath if the man explores the room in order to get the mark. The key to part b is that Cassandra doesn’t want to be seen in the bath.	2 marks
11.	They drove down the wrong lane and their car got stuck in the mud. Students only need to write that their car got stuck in the mud to gain the mark. Don’t accept ‘broken down’. Variations on being stuck in the mud are fine. Also fine is if candidates write ‘truck’ instead of ‘car’.	1 mark
12.	<table><tr><td> QUOTATIONS ‘I... heaved a sigh of relief.’ ‘But I did feel a little flat; it was dull to think I had never even seen the men and never would.’ </td><td> EXPLANATION Cassandra is relieved because she has managed to stay hidden in her bath the whole time/she has not been embarrassed by any of the strange men (or Thomas) discovering that she is in the bath. Cassandra is disappointed because the men’s voices sound interesting – and now she will never know what they look like. </td></tr></table> Give one mark for each accurate quotation (maximum of two). Give two marks for a clear explanation (for example, a student cannot get a mark stating that ‘She felt relief’ to ‘explain’ the quotation ‘I heaved a sigh of relief’). Don’t accept anything about realising the water is cold: this isn’t a strong emotion. Make sure an emotion is clearly stated in explanation part of the question, along with the explanation.	QUOTATIONS ‘I... heaved a sigh of relief.’ ‘But I did feel a little flat; it was dull to think I had never even seen the men and never would.’	EXPLANATION Cassandra is relieved because she has managed to stay hidden in her bath the whole time/she has not been embarrassed by any of the strange men (or Thomas) discovering that she is in the bath. Cassandra is disappointed because the men’s voices sound interesting – and now she will never know what they look like.	4 marks
